

Quarterly Market Review

Second quarter 2024

The second quarter was a positive one for the U.S. equity markets overall, but there continued to be a divergence among returns. Much of the positive returns in the market of late have been the result of a handful of big tech names, such as Nvidia, but the broader markets have paled in comparison. For instance, the tech-heavy Nasdaq 100 index gained over 8% in the second quarter, but the much more broad Russell 2000 index lost over 3% during that same span.

In recent weeks, however, that narrative has begun to shift, as investors have begun rotating out of the highest flying names. It remains to be seen if this is the beginning of a longer-term trend, or just a momentary pause in the Al-fueled frenzy.

We are fully in the midst of election season, and if the past few weeks are any indication, the next 3+ months are going to be crazy. By the time we send out our next quarterly reports, we will be a mere few days until the elections on November 5. A number of clients have expressed concern about how the outcome might impact the investment markets. Our feeling is that any market reaction will be somewhat short-lived, as history has shown that markets focus over time on the overall health of the economy, rather than emotional reactions to events taking place in the U.S. or abroad.

Warm regards,

Reality Meets Expectation for the Mag 7

Second quarter 2024

Wes Crill, PhD, Senior Investment Director and Vice President, Dimensional Fund Advisors

It is unlikely any stock has an expected return of 100% per year. That seems too high to be the cost of equity capital for a company, and it's doubtful anyone would sell a stock with an expected return 10 times the historical stock market return.¹ A realized return that big likely means the company surprised investors in a good way.

The Magnificent 7 stocks returned on average more than 111% in 2023, exceeding the S&P 500 Index by over 85 percentage points. While it's hard to say what cash flow expectations were built into their stock prices, comparing analyst earnings estimates to actual earnings suggests these companies exceeded expectations for the year. All seven reported earnings exceeding average forecasts. For example, Nvidia posted an earnings per share 37.4% higher than the average analyst expectation. Contrast this with 2022, when five of the seven companies' earnings fell short of analyst expectations. The average Magnificent 7 stock return that year trailed the S&P 500 Index by 28 percentage points.

Expecting Mag 7 outperformance to continue is to bet on these companies further exceeding the market's expectations. Simply meeting expectations may result in returns more in line with the market, consistent with the history of top US stocks.

Index Descriptions

Russell 1000 Growth Index - The Russell 1000® Growth Index measures the performance of the largecap growth segment of the US equity universe. It includes those Russell 1000 companies with relatively higher price-to-book ratios, higher I/B/E/S forecast medium term (2 year) growth and higher sales per share historical growth (5 years).

Russell 1000 Index - The Russell 1000® Index measures the performance of the large-cap segment of the US equity universe. It is a subset of the Russell 3000® Index and includes approximately 1,000 of the largest securities based on a combination of their market cap and current index membership.

Russell 1000 Value Index - The Russell 1000® Value Index measures the performance of the largecap value segment of the US equity universe. It includes those Russell 1000 companies with relatively lower price-to-book ratios, lower I/B/E/S forecast medium term (2 year) growth and lower sales per share historical growth (5 years).

Russell 2000 Growth Index - The Russell 2000® Growth Index measures the performance of the smallcap growth segment of the US equity universe. It includes those Russell 2000 companies with relatively higher price-to-book ratios, higher I/B/E/S forecast medium term (2 year) growth and higher sales per share historical growth (5 years).

Russell 2000 Index - The Russell 2000 index tracks the 2,000 smallest public companies by market cap in its parent Russell 3000 stock index. Because small-cap companies make up a much smaller share of the U.S. stock market than large caps, the companies in the Russell 2000 represent approximately 10% of the U.S. stock market's total market capitalization.

Russell 2000 Value Index - The Russell 2000® Value Index measures the performance of the smallcap value segment of the US equity universe. It includes those Russell 2000 companies with relatively lower price-to-book ratios, lower I/B/E/S forecast medium term (2 year) growth and lower sales per share historical growth (5 years).

Russell 3000 Index - The Russell 3000® Index measures the performance of the largest 3,000 US companies representing approximately 96% of the investable US equity market, as of the most recent reconstitution.

S&P Global ex US REIT Index - A member of the S&P Global Property Index Series, the S&P Global ex US REIT serves as a comprehensive benchmark of publicly traded equity REITs listed in both developed and emerging markets, excluding the United States.

S&P Global REIT Index - A member of the S&P Global Property Index Series, the S&P Global REIT serves as a comprehensive benchmark of publicly traded equity REITs listed in both developed and emerging markets.

S&P National AMT-Free Municipal Bond Index - The S&P National AMT-Free Municipal Bond Index is a broad, comprehensive, market value-weighted index designed to measure the performance of the investment-grade tax-exempt U.S. municipal bond market.
